Biographical / Historical Note: John Porteous came to America from Perth, Scotland about the year 1761. He was one of the early British traders at Detroit and Michilimackinac, establishing the Partnership of Duncan, Sterling, and Porteous, and later an association with the merchants James Phyn and Alexander Ellice of Schenectady. He was a resident of Detroit during the siege of Pontiac. Before the outbreak of the American Revolution he went to Montreal. As a loyalist, he went to New York City after its occupation by the British, and carried on a merchandising business there until its evacuation in 1783, when he returned to Scotland. During the Revolution he was one of the owners of the British privateer, Vengeance (formerly the snow Elegante). After the Revolution he took up residence in Nova Scotia; and in 1788 or 1789 he went to Little Falls, New York, where he operated a flouring mill and a trading business and represented the interests of Alexander Ellice, who had succeeded to the lands covered by the Vaughan patent. He was naturalized in 1790, and lived at Little Falls in the Mohawk Valley until his death in March 1799.

Scope and Content Note: The collection consists of papers of and relating to John Porteous, together with some papers of his successors in the enterprises at Little Falls until 1862. These papers include, but are not limited to, correspondence, petitions, business agreements, bonds, legal documents, promissory notes, orders, accounts, receipts and licenses.
